Nardeen represents companies and consumer brands in high-stakes litigation — including complex commercial disputes, real estate litigation, and class actions — and advises clients on advertising compliance, from “Made in USA” origin claims to FTC regulatory strategy. Whether defending a company in a high-stakes dispute or guiding a brand through the evolving landscape of advertising law, she brings sharp analytical thinking and a detail-oriented approach to every engagement.

Nardeen brings a detail-oriented, forward-thinking approach that helps clients operate confidently, mitigate risk, resolve disputes effectively, and meet the demands of rapidly evolving industries.

Client Work

Litigation

- Defends companies in complex commercial disputes, class actions, and product liability matters through all phases of litigation, from pre-suit analysis through trial, with experience delivering opening and closing statements and conducting direct and cross-examinations
- Represents clients in real estate litigation, including disputes involving commercial leases, title and ownership conflicts, and property-related contractual claims
- Supports clients in government investigations and enforcement matters involving the False Claims Act, Anti-Kickback Statute, FCPA, and Department of Justice inquiries

Advertising & Consumer Protection

- Advises consumer product companies on FTC-compliant advertising and marketing claims, including “Made in USA” labeling, origin claims, and substantiation requirements
- Counsels brands on promotional materials, product labeling, and regulatory strategy for consumer-facing products, including FDA-regulated categories

Assists clients in defending against deceptive advertising challenges and branding disputes
