Sabrina has substantial experience supporting clients at all stages of litigation, from advising on pre-litigation strategy to substantive motion practice through briefing and arguing final appeal. She also has experience successfully mediating claims and negotiating settlements. Sabrina has led high-stakes investigations and assisted individuals, companies, and financial institutions in navigating enforcement action by the SEC, CFTC, and US Attorney's Offices.

Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Sabrina was a litigation associate in the New York City office of a large international law firm. She previously clerked for the Honorable Joseph F. Bianco of the US Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. In law school, Sabrina was a James Kent Scholar and Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar, co-president of the Columbia Law Women's Association, and Notes Editor of the Columbia Journal of Law and Social Problems.
