Jeff brings over two decades of experience in administering investigations, reviews, and verifications that apply US antidumping and countervailing duty laws to both market and non-market economies. He possesses extensive experience in calculating duty margins and identifying trends within US customs data, ensuring the precise application of antidumping and countervailing duty decisions.

Before joining ArentFox Schiff, Jeff served for over 20 years as an International Trade Analyst at the US Department of Commerce, Enforcement & Compliance. Prior to that, he worked as an International Trade Specialist at a prominent international law firm, where he developed comprehensive narrative responses and databases for antidumping and countervailing questionnaire responses.
