Morgan focuses his practice on complex commercial disputes involving both businesses and national health care providers, as well as white collar defense. As a member of the COVID-19 Task Force, he has counseled clients regarding legal issues stemming from the pandemic, including disputes involving force majeure and contractual impracticability. Morgan is also part of a team representing a large group of landowners seeking compensation from the federal government for the taking of their private property.

Previous Work

Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Morgan served as a Judicial Law Clerk to the Honorable Rossie D. Alston, Jr. in the US District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia and the Court of Appeals of Virginia. Before that, he served as a Judicial Law Clerk to the Honorable William T. Newman, Jr. in the Arlington County Circuit Court.

Morgan began his career as a Marshal's Aide in the Supreme Court of the United States, observing over 100 oral arguments from the most exclusive position in the courtroom – directly behind the bench – and enjoying the unique opportunity to interact with the Justices on a daily basis.

While attending George Mason University School of Law as a night student, Morgan worked as a Deputy Clerk in the Arlington County Circuit Court. In his final year at George Mason, he was a member of the Supreme Court Clinic, working directly under now-Judge Michael Park of the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. He assisted with the drafting of multiple petitions for certiorari and with merits briefing in Birchfield v. North Dakota, 136 S. Ct. 2160 (2016). Morgan also served as a Research Editor on the George Mason Law Review.

Life Beyond the Law

Morgan is an avid fan of the Buffalo Bills, Washington Capitals, and Washington Nationals. He enjoys cooking and gardening, and spending time with his wife and daughter.
