Mark is driven to achieve results and exceed expectations to ensure long term success for his clients helping them to navigate risk management, corporate, transactional, compliance, contracts, regulatory, coverage, claims, litigation, arbitration, mediation, and international law. He has established capabilities in designing, negotiating, documenting and implementing innovative multinational insurance, reinsurance, and business transactions as well as compliance and internal audit programs.

Previous Work

Before joining ArentFox Schiff, Mark spent the past 12 years as in-house counsel. He most recently served as the General Counsel and Director of Compliance and Internal Audit at the US branch of a leading Korean financial institution and previously held General Counsel and Associate General Counsel roles for an American multinational finance and insurance corporation. Prior to going in-house, Mark was a partner at a boutique insurance law firm in New York City for 20 years. He began his career as a lawyer for New York City Transit before serving as an associate at two boutique firms and working his way up to partner.

Life Beyond the Law

Mark is the proud father of three grown children. In his spare time, he and his family enjoy spending time at the beach with their dogs.
